He came to settle in my grandparents' place at Wadi-Umarapp (Kaman-Sambalpur) when I was a child. This village is located in West Bengal. During his widowhood he had met with an accident which had made him disable for the rest of his life. After his death, my parents, brother and myself has moved to Kalabagan (Kalabubakannur), in the same district. Here, I had completed my schooling. We usually visited Mangalore during the vacations. My great-grandfather, great-uncle and my great-uncle used to take us to their houses. I used to love seeing their beautiful old bungalow, their chengal (native house made of wood and roof made of acacia leaves) and their lush gardens. Unfortunately, the bungalow was almost demolished after my father died. The resting place of my father was very close to that of my great-uncle but I was not able to visit it. The garden and the rest of the land were transferred to a local gang, the Kalabhutan. I was not able to establish relation with any of the elders in the family. I had a friend, Dinesh, who came from Kalyan. His mother was a Matya (elder woman). She used to give me
