"The new motion capture technology delivers an unmatched level of realism which revolutionizes the way the camera behaves," said David Rutter, Creative Director at EA SPORTS. "It allows you to feel the exact movement of the ball and the player who touches it on the pitch. And everything takes place realistically, on a pitch that matches your location in the game." Motion Capture The new FIFA game engine features a sophisticated new motion capture system for more authentic player movement and controls. Players communicate with the computer through motion capture suits that contain more than 70 infrared cameras and three high-end microphones. For the first time in a sports title, each player in a pitch matches the corresponding representation that appears on screen. Faces, body proportions, head orientation, hand sizes, stance and their own facial expressions are captured and compiled to give the player a visual likeness that matches their in-game animation. "We understand the importance of each phase of the game to the overall outcome of a match," said EA SPORTS Senior Producer Steven Rabuchin. "The new motion capture technology is powerful enough to capture everything players do in a football match. From passing, dribbling, shooting and kicking, to tackles and aerial duels." Realistic Player Movement The new player motion capture system is the result of years of research and data from more than 10,000 hours of real-life football matches. Players are filmed against the backdrop of the actual pitch, at the same time, in a way that lets the camera maintain perspective and depth. The motion capture setup consists of teams of six motion capture experts who work around the clock for a week. "We put our brain into the game," said Rabuchin. "We capture the emotion of the person, the controls of the player and the field of play in every tackle, every pass. Players' reactions, such as hesitation, change of focus, speed, attitude changes and emotions on the pitch are captured during the match and reflected in-game. The motion capture system provides exact movement on the pitch. Players are tracked in a way that keeps them grounded in reality and comes to life in the game. Movement on the pitch is totally controlled by the player. The new movement system enables players to run at any speed, even sprinting at a full 90 miles per hour for more realistic reactions. Improved Physics On the pitch, the ball behaves like

FIFA is the official video game of the FIFA World Cup™. Become one of the best players in the world and aim to be crowned FIFA World Cup™ Champion. EA SPORTS FIFA World Cup™ When the World Cup™ kicks off, FIFA 20's engine and gameplay will be ready. A World Cup™ qualification campaign is planned for 2019, while the World Cup™ itself will take place next year in Russia. Matchday FIFA 20 comes with a brand new Career Mode that now features the Conference Competitions system, where countries are divided into 12 or 16 teams, and each has their own league. The story mode includes 13 new story lines to take you behind the scenes of the biggest sporting event of the year. Locksmith You've just released the ball and the goalkeeper has run out to make an attempt to get there first. Keep hold of the ball and the goalkeeper is busy running back! Now that's what you call a perfect lob - the goalkeeper is unable to return the ball back into the goal. The Locksmith makes a triple-scoop and saves your team a goal with their efforts. My Squad FIFA 20 comes with brand new My Squad feature. Keep an eye on the goal, and see which players have been in the team and how well they have performed in recent game sessions. Conference Competitions The Conference Competitions system has been completely overhauled. There are now 12 conferences in FIFA 20, with each conference being made up of 16 clubs. Although the standard 20-team format is still intact, there are 10 more competitions to compete in this year. Play to Win Play to Win, EA SPORTS FIFA 20's new free-kick system, allows you to take over where you left off, after receiving a free-kick. The developers have designed Play to Win to truly separate themselves from FIFA 19's free-kick system. Classic Battles The mode in FIFA 20 is called Classic Battles. It is a return to where the game was in FIFA 2016 and came in two types; classic random battles, and classic scenario battles. Draft The Draft mode in FIFA 20 gives you complete control over all four key parts of your selected team. Every formation has its place in this mode, and the team manager can pick their best formation for the next game. Matchday Competitions bc9d6d6daa
