There have been a number of changes to the 2D target shooting mechanic that FIFA incorporates, including a new shot evaluation system. This new system dynamically evaluates how well a player's player options are, thereby determining how well a player can score from the spot kick opportunity. It does this by comparing the distance between the player and their teammates and opponents. This means the player will be more aware of where they position themselves when taking a penalty, for example, as well as more likely to play higher up the pitch to encourage more opportunities for scoring. FIFA has also opened up the comparison mode, which allows players to view how their technique compares to their club team-mates. Players can view these comparisons at any point during the year. It also provides an in-depth view of the areas in which players could improve. The comparison will also allow players to see where they stand relative to the squad and whether they should consider their role in the team more closely or could perhaps further develop their game, such as by considering a new position. There have also been some minor improvements to the save and load interface, which in most cases will be a welcome change. The save and load screen now features more detail, showing the player's squad, team selection and opponent, as well as details of clubs and leagues which the player is a part of. This information is also accessible via a new fan-initiated menu which players can access from the main menu. In terms of gameplay improvements, FIFA 2K18 introduced new artificial intelligence and goal celebrations, which can be activated by the players' celebrations when scoring in multiple ways. EA SPORTS FIFA 2K19 is set to go into more detail on these in-game celebrations, including the introduction of crowd chants, a new player reaction with celebration animation for when a player scores, and a new virtual audience response that has been generated in real-time based on the goals and positioning of the players. Aside from various gameplay and presentation enhancements, FIFA 2K19 is also set to address the unbalanced and imbalanced international football environments in FIFA 20, while introducing new tactical flexibility, a new goalkeeping system and the ability to play anywhere on the pitch. Kicking off in just over three weeks' time, the KOP your First Set of Questions feature has been reset, with the new mode releasing on 9th September. The normal set of questions will run from 9th September to 23rd

Keyboard - With the updated controls, players will discover greater and more intuitive control over their game, particularly in the build up to a shot, as players get closer to the ball to the point of playing. FIFA 22 features an improved deep template, with more control over how the player’s body slides to adjust to an incoming pass, leading to more opportunities for both set-pieces and goals. Players can now make movements to the ball with greater precision and fluidity and more natural controls, while also being able to use the ball controls intuitively by activating them with the flick of a finger. Revised Passing - Players can now lean on the pitch to receive a pass with different degrees of comfort. The combination of the new angle-timing and the ability to "lean-in" to receive a pass has allowed for greater anticipation of a pass, enabling players to anticipate and control the ball from any angle, whether a direct free-kick, a corner, a corner-kick or any other form of pass. New Attacking Tactics - At close to 100% passing accuracy (on various playing surfaces), players can now shoot with more confidence knowing that they will be able to connect with the ball as they look to score. The new Player Impact Engine (PIE) allows for greater anticipation of passes and increased control over balls played in from the run and is a key component to the new shooting system in FIFA 22. The PIE is then impacted by context and position, while players can now also control their
