“The music is by Michael Kauth, a prominent composer for Far Cry and other games. The theme, entitled "Have we fallen yet?" is one of a series of video game tracks composed by Kauth for Ubisoft. It's a lovely track and ties the game more strongly to Far Cry, which makes it easier to imagine where the game would fit in the series.” About Far Cry: “It fits in perfectly with the Far Cry series, and it would be an apt theme, as the game is full of travel and exploration, with players forced to explore unknown locations and overcome challenges. The theme is certainly very Far Cry-like. Serenity: “The music, by Michael and Chuck Kress, is a good fit for this mysterious world. It feels like a serious setting, with crescendos and contrast to the piano work as the Islanders come into view. With a sense of dread, the piano work intensifies during the second and final encounter. The game is a good fit for Far Cry, but when I hear the track after playing the game, I'm not so sure. It just doesn't feel like Far Cry. I think Michael Kauth might have paid homage to the Far Cry 2 soundtrack - The Seaside Track (Beach Theme). Without spoiling anything, the track plays during the ending of the game. It was done by the composer of Far Cry 1, Clint White. To me it sounds like he took a similar track and did a subtle interpretation. There is a piano piece also by Kauth, that plays at the beginning when you first get on the boat. Kuth said something like "You don't feel like a pilgrim anymore, you feel like a spy" or something similar.” “Das Gesamtpaket aus einer Story, die einen ganz neuen Aspekt präsentiert, einer sehr schönen Grafik mit winzig, kleinen Details, tollen Synchronstimmen, angenehmer Hintergrundmusik und gut platzierten Soundeffekten sowie Rätseln, die einen zum Lachen bringen, ist einfach hervorragend gelungen!” 95% - 82% - 90% - Kingdom of Games About The Game Anomie - OST:

What's new in Noyah: Corrupted Memories:

"Death Wish" is the thirteenth episode of the first season of the NBC science fiction and action-drama television series Heroes. The episode aired on February 5, 2008. Plot development on the episode began in 2007, shortly after a fan convention in Anaheim, California, from which multiple fan theories emerged, including many about this episode. The fan theories and the discussion among the Heroes writers about the direction of the season became a determining factor for the script; after a few writers began writing various character deaths, they eventually decided to kill off one of the series' main characters, Noah Bennett (Greg Grunberg). The episode was directed by David Semel. Plot MacAbre Psychiatric Clinic In an interview, Dave Flynn gives Suresh a mild warning: what's happened to him is a warning; he has to stay away from these places. Mark Bennet discusses with a psychiatrist how he doesn't believe in the supernatural. The doctor reminds him that many people go through the same situation, especially after a life-changing event. He tells Mark that he has to believe in what he has gone through. Mark is too numb to cry. Noah Bennet is still upset about the fact that Sylvia was attacked just before she gave birth to her baby, who appears to be in critical condition in his crib. Sylvia and Matt (aboard the yacht), are seen having sex (Matt must be in some kind of coma to want to have sex with Sylvia). Matt comments that he didn't come when you called; to which Sylvia replies: you didn't call, you just showed up. Mark asks Tommy to keep the baby safe while he, Matt and Noah take a break. They go to the hospital chapel to show Noah that the baby's still alive. Noah gets a call from Jan's phone, telling him that she has been attacked by someone, and there is no way they can get a message to her or to Suresh. Noah returns to the yacht and asks Matt how they are going to keep the baby safe. Matt leaves to go to the bow to check something out. He then returns, telling them that he will handle it. Later, Matt, with Noah's help, gets into Jan's room where they hear the baby screaming and crying. Matt promises to never leave Noah. As they leave the room, Sylvia begins showing the baby to an older man. Meanwhile, a disturbance is heard, but Tommy hears only Sylvia's voice (the child has been

Not your run-of-the-mill hide-and-peek game. Rather, a game of fear, the opposite of "Find the monster!" where you fear finding the monster as much as the monster fears finding you! The game will push your fear boundaries by introducing new and challenging game mechanics like adrenaline shots, and a maze that changes layout on each play. APPRAISAL: "Fear hides in the dark and creeps up on you in the light. In this game you hold a flashlight in one hand, and a monster-sizing hammer in the other. You become a monster hunter in the darkest, most frightening of places, feeling your breath catching as you walk around the maze... getting the monster first!" The Gameplay: How far can you take this challenge? Is it possible to find the monster? What is The Monster? The Monster can sense the presence of the other players, and can even see who you are, but still cannot see the monsters. But it is relentless in its hunt for you! When in its path, you will get grabbed by its claws, and it will try to bury you alive! The monster may come in multiple forms! Try to make it happy, or scared! How is The Monster Hunting like Hide and Seek? Similar to hide and seek, except it will hunt you relentlessly! Scared? Don't be! It is you that is hunted, not the monster! Who can know fear and survive? You can know fear and survive this game! Can you escape the maze? Yes! Escape this maze with your flashlight, and find the exit door to safety! REQUIREMENTS Requires iPhone/iPod Touch running iOS 5.1 or later All In App purchases are optional Graphics are sharper, to provide a better more immersive experience What's New in Version 1.0.2: Fix a bug where points were lost under certain conditions Fix a bug where sometimes the game would not always play correctly Screens are now properly mirrored Credits: design, art, programming, production, coding: Joel Walter, Chris Bosland, Uland Morris and Leigh Brown. special thanks to Mike (Pixel Corps) for the Proximity Detector Engine used. Thanks to all those who have supported this work and helped shape it along the way! We hope you enjoy playing The Searchlight on iPhone/iPod Touch as much as we enjoyed creating it!
