Tonight an official teaser has appeared on the Sony Japan website and would appear to indicate that there will be a release date for this new addition to the PlayStation family. The PlayStation Vita TV has been officially announced for Japan last week and the date of release is October 5th, 2014. The video gives a sneak peak at some of the features of the device, such as the full PlayStation Network functionality on the set top box. It will feature Netflix, Amazon and YouTube as well as apps like Best Shot and MLB The Show. The video also mentions of the use of over-the-air TV, which suggests that there is the ability to use the device as a TV antennae as well. No plans on when the device will be released outside of Japan have been announced. ### What's new:

game development Monthly Archives: February 2018 The game was developed by K3togy and is available on two mobile platforms. It was released on Google Play 8 days ago and recently on App Store. At first glance, the game is clean and colourful. The game itself appears to be pretty simple. Players are presented with some tiles and use a large number of boxes and buttons to rearrange them into a sorted sequence. There are lots of strategy games out there but I consider this to be one of the best two-dimensional strategy games. It's very good for those who can't do strategy puzzle games in three dimensions but are willing to play game that is only a couple of dimensional in design. There are 4 levels of difficulty. I'm giving high marks to the developers for the incremental difficulty levels. I love the game so much, that I will not hesitate to review additional products by the same developers. It is the game "Topsy". Play the game and see how it feels like to be the KING in Tower online battles. Creating and publishing a highly sophisticated game like a Tower Online or a Tower represents a huge investment. The very fact that the cost of the product is so high is evidence of the tech provided -sophisticated and transparent. I wish all game developers would invest in the future like this: create a game like this, over and over again, thus focusing on the core product first. I'm sure the market for them will be very tight. Publishing Tower via Google Play is a worthwhile process. The game should reach your players faster, which is a great advantage. Topsy is a two-dimensional (2D) online strategy game. It's a tactical shooter. It's fun and addictive. The game developers don't have a website which is a shame. Lacking a website gives one a bad image since it renders one vulnerable to being a "bait and switch" scenario. The promo Youtube video had 14.2 million views before the trailer was removed. They have a taste for good media, it seems. It's easy to see what the game is. The player controls a character(s) and has access to a guns. Every round/turn, the player must shoot the other characters. You can see the movement of the other characters as you shoot. The controls

Movable, evasive Mabites stalk players, and explode in a ghastly haze that causes an immediate fall to the ground. Their attacks can injure, ravage and kill, and the game leaves a trail of horror in its wake. And that's before Mabites awaken and begin to seek out humans. Two Playable Characters Player 1 takes control of a young girl, Tiie. At the start of the game, she's a lost, injured and isolated refugee from a gruelling journey across the world's south seas.
