pc with activation code. The software most popular for architectural design. Q: Check if Element has a specific attribute in a Windows Form I want to check the attribute of a specific window. I have found this question with a list of methods for checking properties: Checking attributes of a control For my problem I need the attribute, not the name of the control. So, I tried this: string path =
this.Location.ToString(); XmlNode[] nodes =
xmlDoc.SelectNodes("/DataForm/WindowList/Window"); foreach (XmlNode node in nodes) { if (node.Attributes["Title"].Value == path) { string currentWorkerType =
node.Attributes["@DefaultWorkerType"].Value; } } The window should have the attribute value of "Development", but it only has a single attribute value, therefore I can't figure out why it goes into the if statement. If I do: string path =
this.Location.ToString(); XmlNode[] nodes =

```
xmlDoc.SelectNodes("/DataForm/WindowList/Window");
foreach (XmlNode node in nodes) { string currentWorkerType = node.Attributes["DefaultWorkerType"].Value; if (node.Attributes["@DefaultWorkerType"].Value == path) { string currentWorkerType2 = node.Attributes["@DefaultWorkerType"].Value; } } this works fine, meaning the node has at least two attributes. What am I doing wrong? A: It looks like the node has two attributes. But you're only checking for one in your if statement. Try using the FirstNodeValue property of the Attributes property.
