Perfectly playable for all ages! Isolate and slip into a mind-blowing world where logic and creativity collide, delivering surreal experiences as profound as they are amazing! Rules: - You don't remember where you come from. Don't worry, I don't blame you for it either. - You're an alien. An alien, by the way! - You have only one life left. - The memories are yours, but the content? Totally alien. A drama-filled mystery awaits you, full of creepy moments, dangerous situations, and mind-blowing puzzles! Go and unravel the story of your life! “But are you sure that you want this???” It all started when you had just one life left. “No way. I'm not giving it back. I want the memories of my life, I deserve them.” The only thing you could remember, though, were the emotions, the right emotions... “I don't know... I want to enjoy my memories of life, before it's too late.” Well, you are all-right choices, aren't you? “What if I am making a mistake? Maybe I should go back to my world... I don't want to become a strange alien with false memories of my life...” “Okay, OK, OK...” Don't question me. Keep walking. “Who are you? Where do you come from? Am I an alien? That can't be!” You are an alien. You should realize it by now. “It's impossible... This is too bizarre...” “Weird, weird...” (In the gap) Oh, no, no, no... “Is this... MY world? No way!” I don't know what to call this... “Did you tell me to jump? Why did you tell me that?” “I don't remember telling you that, but why are you... what are you doing?” Your life is over. “No, no, no...” You are in a tall building. What am I doing here? “I'm not supposed to be here. I need to go back. I don't like this at all. What's going on here...” You are the only c9d1549cdd

Q: How to keep window on top after maximize? I have recently gone to Qt Creator 2.4.1 and I am currently having a small problem with the working window class. I have a main window class that I initialize the UI in, I also have a child window class that I initialize the UI in, the child window is a plugin window. Now, when I go to main window and maximize the window, the child window automatically comes down, so I have to press the task bar and go back up to get it back on top. I have tried different things like saving the child window state with by pressing CTRL + ALT + ESC and then going back, however I get the following error in the console: "The window "plugin" could not be moved, because it is disabled or not allowed to be moved." How would I fix this? I also have a strange problem, when I open the main window and I minimize it, it goes below my system bar in the middle of the screen, how would I fix that? Edit: I have already tried `Window::setWindowState()`, is there anyway that I could get the same result as minimized in the task bar? A: For what it's worth, I'd say the problem is that your plugin window has a standard menu bar and is enabled in the system preferences. You can minimize it normally via the OS menu and it will stay where you want it (on top). However, make sure to turn off

& 5 New Peaks Date submitted: Thursday, February 2, 2018 “There is an old Scottish proverb, ‘The man who risks his life for his country is a slave. If he lives, he is a hero. If he dies, he is only a brave soldier.’”- Robert the Bruce (1303-1329) This is a no-holds-barred throwdown on the cliffs above Helvick Head for the sum total of six new British Columbia summits. The entire seven hundred plus foot Skyline Gully is ours for the taking, and the fierce competition for the last two Alpine peaks is ferocious. Let the fun begin! Feet bound and loaded, we descended from Bella’s Lake to the highly capable K2 machines. Once below the brewpub, we grabbed another hot ramen from the cart and took off. Date: February 2, 2018 Time: 9:10am Average Speed: 56 km/h Total Time: 7 hours Our first mountain was up and over Baddle Ridge at the southern end of the range. It can be climbed en route to the summit from the west, which may make this climb unique on the peak. From the trail on the ridge, it is 1600 metres of steeper switchbacks to the transition point at 5400 vertical feet. From there, with only a third or more of the way to the top of the mountain in view, another 130 metres of moderate turns and laboriously relevé over a small chute of white water were necessary. Once atop at 6089 feet, the summit was a mere 200 meters to the right. Erik Steneviogn was our lead, and he delivered with an impressive and well timed ride to the top. Twenty minutes. Cool. Date: February 2, 2018 Time: 9:59am Average Speed: 50 km/h Total Time: 6 hours Our second mountain was at the far end of the range on the east side. From the trail on the ridge, it is a bewildering descent off a very narrow ridge. After just under 600 metres, we dropped down to a ledge that was noticeably overhang. This portion of the trail went down over a chute of water. More exposed and at a lower point than the ridge trail, it was a thrilling descent. Afterwards, the trail ends abruptly at a steep and exposed chute of water below the ridge of Black
