There are many ways to access Google Assistant on your phone, but Android 12 adds another one for Google Pixel models that might be the best way for now. The way to access Google Assistant is to tap the Google logo and you will see "Google Assistant" for instructions. It also lets you switch between Assistant and Google Assistant on your phone with just two taps. As with previous versions of Android, you will need to be told to access the feature in your phone's settings. There are two settings on Pixel phones, one right below "Google Assistant" and one below "Google Assistant".
