q3a/q3a64 - q3a is a game server for q3a, the original q3. it allows you to play online against others who are running q3a servers, as well as creating your own online servers. it is often used in conjunction with pj64, as q3a64 is not compatible with project64, only q3a. this plugin, while not perfect, is very effective. source is only lightly closed, and can be a bit buggy.

direct audio converter (dac) - this is a freeware that allows you to convert audio files to.wav. it's very easy to use and very fast. it's also freeware, so you can use it as often as you like! this plugin is pretty much perfect for playing.wav files. you can also use it to convert wma to mp3, or.mp3 to.wav, etc. you can find it here: .

project64 v1.57 - this is an open source plugin for project64. similar to the rice plugin it uses emulation to make the games work. it does not support all games though, so its not always the best choice for a project64 plugin. that said, its still one of the best choices out there. the latest version has alot of improvements over the past years. rice 6.1.1 beta 10 - this is a cross compatible plugin that supports both opengl and (on windows only) directx. compatibility is high and it has a very large feature set. also has support for high quality texture packs made by 3rd parties. can be quite buggy at times, so its only 3rd on the list above. source was really opened up to the community.

This is a very large release, so I'll try to explain it as best I can. Firstly, I'm pretty sure that the error is caused because the plugin is outdated, and thus was incompatible with the current version of Glide64. The main reason this update was needed was because the last version of the plugin used fixed memory addressing, but this was removed in Glide64 v1.3.0. Now that the plugin is compatible with it, things should be fine. I made a small modification, which is to use the `x_align` field from `GlideN64` for the rendering offset. This allows you to get a much cleaner and more realistic result, and I quite like the results it gives. Finally, added some new 'Slider' plugin parts. A slider is a type of slider that allows you to set the value of a number, (e.g. angle) with a new 'Value' field that only shows when you mouse over it. I implemented the following plugins:

- Slider - With limited functionality, this simply lets you set a value for a number (e.g. an angle).
- Progress - Creates a progress bar, allowing you to set a percentage, along with a title (e.g. A: a: an, etc.)
- Text - Creates text that can be used in place of a number (e.g. a: an, etc.)
- Numeric - Creates a number input box (e.g. A number: a number)
- Boolean - Creates a checkbox (e.g. A checkbox: A checkbox)
- Menu - Creates a menu with a limited number of options (e.g. A menu: A menu, etc.)

Since I don't really use these features, I decided to make them share one small memory location with a value of one. (Could change in future if I ever use them). I'll also eventually add tutorials for these, but I won't post them now.
