After the latest update last month, Movavi Video Editor Plus now also supports HDR video editing on Mac OS X El Capitan and later. HDR video is high dynamic range video or depth-of-field style photos that display a wider range of colors and finer detail. The version of Movavi Video Editor Plus running on Mac OS X also includes a graphics tablet extension that provides up to 10,000 DPI. This enables you to draw directly on your video using the tablet's touchpad, providing precise control for editing.

The version of Movavi Video Editor Plus running on Mac OS X El Capitan and later also supports it enables you to add a color filter to your canvas. This provides a fast and easy way to add artistic elements such as sepia or monotone to your videos.

Moreover, the graphics tablet extension now also displays the drawing tools directly in the video editing view window and includes the following features: Yes, it's possible to cover your entire home in a blanket of Wi-Fi for less than $60. We know this because the Vilo Mesh Wi-Fi system can do it. This ensemble isn't the fastest mesh system on the market, but at $20 per node it significantly undercuts any other three-piece mesh network we've tested. The Vilo kit is sure to eliminate any dead spots a midsize house could have, and it's an unbeatable value as long as you're not looking to stream 4K video or download huge amounts of data. (See more budget routers and mesh systems.)
