Welcome to our website. The complete fixed-wing aircraft video game titles for the clearview rc flight simulator is the hottest titles on the market now. That's just the reason why the majority of the people are on this website today. We would like to also make it clear that our aim is not to scam anyone or defraud in any type way. However, if that is the case please report it directly to the office and our team will handle that immediately. Thank you. RealFlight Evolution evolves the world's most popular RC flight sim with a modern user interface while adding dozens of fields and more than 100 additional aircraft models. It also gives you access to new models and fields that are released quarterly! In the eventuality that you are planning to purchase a remote-controlled aircraft, but you lack the experience on how to operate it, then you are probably worried that you are going to crash it from the first attempt. The good news is that you can use specialized software to fine-tune your flight skills before using the real model. (deleted) In Real Flight G2 there is an option under the VIEW menu to show the ground by default it is off. To activate it click View on the menu bar and look for an item that says something about ground (I'm sorry I don't remember the exact wording offhand), click this and a check mark should appear in front of the item. The ground will now show at all times when the sim is running. However since the ground is now always showing you are limited in the altitude that you can fly the model. Also, there was a lite version of G2 and I don't know if it supports the ground view option. Hope this helps Ken
