Instructions for installing the trainer can be found on the link above, along with a walkthrough on how to use this tool. The trainer utilizes the DirectX API, which means all laptops have the ability to run the trainer. You can run it in a full screen mode for the best performance. To run in full screen mode, you must use the Windows Key + Enter. You must also have the DirectX 9.0c runtime installed for the trainer to work. If you have not already installed the DirectX 9.0c runtime, you can visit the following site: If you are interested in testing trainer items, you can add them to a trainer list. There will also be a button for you to print your trainer list, which can be left open in your print dialog. Note that when printing the list, it will only print out your currently selected trainer so if you have any other trainers you want to add to the list, you'll have to press the Print button again to add them to the list. Lastly you can always join my Group, Single Player Deathmatch which you can found under the Group section [url=http://drakensangtrainer.webs.com/]click here to visit homepage[/url] *Re-installation of the trainer wasn't successful because of the wrong trainer filename/pack name. Just put Old in the Original slot and the trainer won't request installation, no need to re-download it. *If you need a specific profession trainer with a specific skill, select "Older Version" under Tools and you'll see your choices of trainers. For some trainers they will be vague, such as "Herbalist", so you'll have to ignore these trainers and look through your trainer list. *
