content-aware feature in photoshop cs6 to use the tree as a guide to let photoshop know where the new tree should go. then you can just use the tree as a reference and draw the tree on the layer, letting photoshop fill in the background. the content-aware feature does a lot more than just tracing out objects. it also lets you use the background of a photo to mask out objects in the foreground and even to mask out objects that aren't even in the photo, like a bird flying past in the sky. so, what are you waiting for? try this out for yourself. go to one of your photo albums, open one of your pictures in photoshop cs6, and try out the content-aware feature. 5ec8ef588b
