It was good to see him be brought to tears actually, he cant help it really. I was a bit hurt that I saw him cry, but I suppose it was to be expected and Im not going to lie. I was a bit of a prize. I was, I was a bit frightened. When I started watching the show I did. I expected to learn about the technical things in the kitchens, how to cook them, how to do things, but its far more than that. Gordon Ramsay is just such a role model, he does everything right. You see how he interacts with everyone, how he treats people and he doesnt take crap from nobody. The young chefs, meanwhile, think Im a tough old git, so Im going to ask them to stay out of the kitchen for the next 24 hours, eating whatever they want. How s this going to be a good test of culinary ability? The contestants are not happy to be out of the kitchen, as theyre used to watching Ramsay at work in there. The show gives home cooks the chance to get up close to the best in the business, but its no mere apprenticeship. Theyre the latest generation of Ramsay champions, with the same fantastic gift for cooking that their father had and the same ambition to be world class. Theyve learnt all the recipes and techniques from the Ramsay chef to cooking school, and theyre now about to be thrown a challenge that tests the limits of their creativity. Basically, the idea behind the challenge is to come up with something that doesnt look and taste the same as anything else youve ever made. Up until now, the young Ramsay rookies have been given the chance to develop their skills, and then theyve been thrown a test that theyve never faced before. Now it would be easy to keep them in the dark for as long as possible and then test them, but that wouldnt be fair and it wouldnt even be challenging. Weve said from the beginning that we cant make assumptions about how good theses young chefs are. Theyve got a lot to prove. Its the start of a journey for them and this challenge is just the beginning of a new way of cooking. This is going to challenge them in a way that no cooking challenge has ever done before. The final will be the chance for the young home cooks to meet the masters, and the ultimate test of their ability to master Ramsay s toughest competition yet. The six junior home cooks are facing a 12-hour challenge that will see them pit their culinary skills against the top home cooks in the world. On top of that they are taken under the wing of the British Royal Family, and must recreate a royal wedding breakfast fit for a king. The young Ramsay rookies were whittled down to two for the next round of the competition. Thian is from central Texas, where shes spent her life being surrounded by family, friends, and laughter. Andrea is from Norway, where she grew up in a country where you eat with your hands, and there is lots of skiing to be done.

the new rules on alcohol for trainee chefs were introduced by chef gordon ramsay on his new channel 4 show, 'hell's kitchen. the only rule was that they could not drink during the service and they had to order it from the bar. however, no one was punished for any alcohol-related incidents, and there was no testing of blood alcohol content (bac) before, during or after service. the final test is on the day that the chefs are selected to enter the final challenge. the chef who is selected to go forward at the end of the day is the one with the lowest bac and, usually, this is the contestant who had the worst service. it is supposed to be a warning for the new entrant to make sure they do not repeat the actions of the last entrant. the new entrant usually has a hot head and will think they are being punished for something, when, in fact, they have not done anything wrong. this test is not as severe as the one that the contestant is put through at the end of the series, as the entrants are not given a bac reading. we sought to: (1) explore the feasibility of using email for seasonal influenza vaccination reminders to parents of adolescents and (2) assess influenza vaccination rates among adolescents whose parents were randomized to either receive or not receive email reminders. email addresses were obtained for parents of patients 10-18years from 4 practices in michigan. addresses were randomized to either receive email reminders, or not. reminder messages were sent during october 2012-march 2013 (season 1) and october 2013-march 2014 (season 2). vaccination status was determined 60days following the last email reminder for each season using the statewide michigan care improvement registry (mcir); per protocol bivariate and multivariate logistic regression analyses were conducted to evaluate reminder notification. after email cleaning, testing, and matching with mcir, approximately half of email addresses (2348 of 5312 in season 1; 3457 of 6549 in season 2) were randomized. bivariate analyses found that influenza vaccination within 60days after notification date was similar among those notified (34%) versus not notified (29%) in both season 1 (p=0.06) and season 2 (39% vs. 37%, p=0.20). however, multivariate models adjusted for season, site, and receipt of notification in two seasons found a higher likelihood of influenza vaccination among children that received notification (aor=1.28, 95% ci=1.09, 1.51); in addition, differences in influenza vaccination were also observed between practice sites (range: p=0.15 to p 5ec8ef588b
