KEYMACRO is a security product for Windows. In it, you can track your keys, and it is made up of two parts: a key management software and a hardware device. KeyMACRO key management software The software provides you with an overview of your keys and how to use them. It also stores your most important passwords in a secure place. The software is compatible with a variety of types of key types, so you can use different brands and models. KeyMACRO also automatically updates your information when needed, so your passwords won't be compromised. To make sure that you don't forget any of your keys, you can select the ones you use often from the list. Moreover, this software can be used to manage your files. You can edit or create your files, choose what happens when a key is lost, and much more. Furthermore, the application is highly flexible, as it offers you the option to unlock the computer as soon as you have the USB key plugged in. This way, you don't have to keep a track of all your keys all the time. KeyMACRO key manager The hardware device is a USB dongle that you can use to track your keys. It is small and sleek, and you can safely store your keys in it. You can use the device to open files, sign documents, make payments and much more. Once you insert the USB key into the dongle, you will have to log in to the KeyMACRO software, and then you will see the list of all your files, just as you would in a regular computer. You can also use your USB key to unlock the computer and copy files to it. This is useful in case you have a lot of files you need to manage. KeyMACRO can be purchased for $79.99.
