She's never had the honest experience of having to deal with difficult people, or having to make a client accept reality. She's never started at the bottom and worked her way up. She has no concept of deadlines and doesn't understand that to be good at this, you have to be able to show your client a direction, rather than just dictate the way it's going to look. She tries to do everything herself and her client keeps asking her to tell her to let other people do what they do best.
