A chemically modified form of an epitope from the Epstein-Barr virus-encoded latent membrane protein (LMP) is both a potent immunogen and a carrier molecule for peptide epitopes. An epitope for a monoclonal antibody (mAb) against Epstein-Barr virus (EBV) was found to reside within the amino acid sequence of the latent membrane protein (LMP) of EBV. As a natural epitope for the mAb, it is highly conserved and consists of the amino acid sequence YVADRVDV. It was synthesized by modifying the N terminus of the LMP to contain a thiol-reactive maleimide group, which is reactive with the sulfhydryl group of cysteine in the protein. The modified LMP was isolated by thiol exchange and was shown to be highly immunogenic in rabbits. Further, a dithioerismine group was incorporated at various positions within the sequence YVADRVDV. This resulted in a panel of thioether-modified LMPs, which also were strongly immunogenic. These findings indicate that small peptide epitopes linked to the amino or carboxyl terminus of the LMP are highly immunogenic. Rajnath Singh at a function in Vayasthan (PTI Photo) NEW DELHI: Union Home Minister Rajnath Singh on Friday said the government has taken steps to assure the poor that everything that they are looking for will be provided to them. Singh, who was addressing a public gathering in New Delhi's Vayasthan area, also said those who want to help the needy should do so without any expectation. "If you want to help the needy then you should not expect anything in return. You should think of helping those who are without any help," the Home Minister said. Singh also said that the government is doing its best to provide security to the people. "The government has taken many steps to provide security to the people of the country," he added. The Home Minister also reiterated the government's commitment to providing minimum services to the people of the country. "I can assure that the government is working for every welfare of the people.
