After applying a new version and reconfiguring the file that stores the activation parameters, you can start a .Q: Show that the equation $x = y$ has exactly one solution in \mathbb{R} Show that the equation $x = y$ has exactly one solution in \mathbb{R} Suppose we have $x_1 = y_1$. Then we have $x_1 = y_1 = \frac{1}{x_1} x_1^2 = 1$ We know that x_1 must be positive. This implies that $x_1 > 0$ This does not tell us very much about what x_1 could be... What do I do from here? A: Hint: write $x - y = 0$, squaring both sides yields $x^2 - y^2 = 0$, this is a linear equation in $x - y$, so you can find its roots. Degradation of nitroaromatics by a mutant nitroarene-degrading bacterium: the role of low-molecular-mass quinones in reductive dechlorination. The environmental fate of 2,4-dinitrotoluene (2,4-DNT) is determined by the biochemical dechlorination activity that reduces the chlorinated rings of this compound. The enzyme responsible for the initial conversion of 2,4-DNT to 2,4-diaminotoluene (2,4-DA) is unknown, but evidence for its presence in a wide variety of bacteria and fungi points to the possible involvement of soluble low-molecular-mass quinones in this process. Since little information is available on the enzymology of the hydrodechlorination of 2,4-dinitrophenol (2,4-DNP) to its 2,4-diamino derivative, we employed molecular-biological and biochemical approaches to investigate the biological activity of a mutant strain of Desulfotobacterium dechlorinative, which was isolated from sediment taken from a former industrial site. The strain
